

Press Release ★ Ansible Editions

Published 1 July 2013. Two new collections of F&SF “Books” columns by Algis Budrys, completing the Ansible Editions set of three. All are in 6" x 9" trade paperback format, with index, priced at $20.00 direct from Lulu.com. See <http://ae.ansible.co.uk/> for further details.

Algis Budrys Benchmarks Revisited 1983-1986

267 pages: ISBN 978-1-291-43604-4

Benchmarks Concluded 1987-1993

271 pages: ISBN 978-1-291-45527-4

Besides being a major science fiction author, Algis Budrys (1931-2008) was one of the genre's finest critics. The acclaimed columns he wrote for Galaxy magazine from 1967 to 1971 were collected as Benchmarks: Galaxy Bookshelf (1985), which won him a Locus Award for best non-fiction. In 2007 Budrys received the prestigious Pilgrim Award, which honours lifetime contributions to SF and fantasy scholarship. That life achievement also included a much longer run of equally fine reviews and essays for The Magazine of Fantasy and Science Fiction, written from 1979 to 1993 and totalling some 467,000 words. Here at last is a collected edition in three volumes, each with an index: Benchmarks Continued (2012), Benchmarks Revisited (now available) and Benchmarks Concluded (now available).

• Tim Powers: “As well as one of the best writers in our field, Algis Budrys was the best writer about our field. These essays are much more than reviews – altogether they’re a deeply perceptive history of science fiction literature.”

• John Clute: “There have been three fathers of sf criticism, Damon Knight, James Blish, and A J Budrys. More than any of their heirs, they knew sf inside out, from the 1940s onward. They all wrote well, and more than well. AJ also wrote vastly: authoritative, loose, sharp, casual, tough; and with all the past at his command. He told us everything he could. This 460,000 word trilogy is only a part of that gift. Feast well. We shall see nothing of its like ever again.”

Already published

Benchmarks Continued 1975-1982

Trade paperback format: November 2012

Price $20.00 from Lulu.com

267 pages: ISBN 978-1-300-34659-3

Ansible Editions, 94 London Road, Reading, RG1 5AU • Email info@ae.ansible.co.uk